An interesting business to start would include bio and mechanical engineering. Assembling and fitting prosthetics limbs or other body parts that an injured or ill victim needs would help others and raise a fair profit as well as a reputation. Who knows - this business could become the most popular prosthetics company in the U.S.A or maybe even the world? This business might even be involved in military needs. After all, prosthetics aren't cheap and hopefully a company like this can change that.

Kaleb Nerren, 8th, Surgoinsville Middle, Mrs. Hensley

If I started a business, it would be a candy store. The store would be as big as a mall. It would just have candy. There would be candy from all around the world. That would be my business.
