If the internet crashed forever, that would be great. Kids could play outside instead of being glued to their electronics. But, it kind of would be bad because you wouldn't see the news or hear podcasts. So, it could be bad or good because there would be less screen time, but more time for going outside and having fun. There is one thing though that could be really bad. If there is a tornado, how would you know? I'm going to say that would be bad. But I would like to spend more time in the grass, go fishing, camping, hunting and many more ways without the internet.

Holley Jones, 2nd, Rock Springs Elementary, Mrs. Charlton

My internet crashed and the company can't fix it, but a thought came to my mind. I could entertain myself so I thought about how it would benefit me or could start difficulties. It would benefit me because I could start going outside or play more board games. I feel like everyone is a little addicted to the internet or social media a little too much. Also, the internet is also bad because of bullying, trolls, stalkers, and a lot of crimes. Identity theft is very bad on the internet. They could hack your device and give you a virus. It could also affect your focus and patience, health issues, and obesity.

Kaylynn Williams, 6th, Elydale Middle, Mrs. Smith

If the internet crashed forever, the benefits would be good for many kids. I would play outside more if my electronics crashed. I would also read more books. I would play board games inside with my mom. If we didn't have internet ever again, we would spend more time with family and play outside.

Aber Bellamy, 2nd, Hilton Elementary, Mrs. Edwards

If the Internet crashed forever, the benefits would be I would spend more time at the farm with my papaw. I like to ride his four-wheeler, feed the cows, and go to his brother's house. The drawbacks would be if you have friends in different states you couldn't talk to them. You couldn't spend time with them.

Raigen Vikara, 6th, Jonesville Middle, Mrs. Davis

If the internet crashed forever, I would be sad because I can't shop online anymore.

Kaylie Flanary, 6th, Pennington Middle, Ms. Lambert

If the internet crashed forever, what would be the benefits and drawbacks?

If the internet crashed, it may be a good thing because you can spend your time being more active like playing outside, taking a walk, or riding a bike. You can use your time wisely instead of having a phone or electronics in your face. I hope you understand why I choose to do different things.

Ali Horton, 4th, Miller Perry Elementary, Ms. Jeffers

If the internet crashed the benefits would be that people will go to the gym more and people will be healthier than before. The drawbacks would be that you can't order food.

David Deal, 6th, Pennington Middle, Ms. Lambert

If the internet crashed forever, I would miss watching YouTube videos when I wind down in the evening. I would not miss my sister annoying me with text messages.

Hadlea Price, 7th, Jonesville Middle, Mrs. Brooks

If the internet crashed forever, the benefit would be playing outside. The drawback would be no playing online games. Losing the internet is not very fun. But you can still play outside. You can play with pets, chickens, and goats. You can also play with your friends. You can also go to the store. You can ride a bike and play at the park. Some more benefits might be playing with your cat and dog, cleaning your room, cleaning the kitchen, brushing your teeth, and cleaning the bathroom. These are some fun activities to do if the internet crashes forever.

Brandon Stallard, 2nd, Hilton Elementary, Mrs. Edwards

Today I will tell you what I would do if the internet crashed FOREVER. The first thing I would do is play with Lego. Second, I would try to go outside but it's too cold so I have to stay inside. Lastly, I would go to bed and sleep in. In conclusion I hope you learned what you could do if the internet crashed forever and maybe you could go outside.

Nathaniel Spurlock, 4th, Miller Perry Elementary, Ms. Jeffers

If the internet crashed forever, I would be happy and sad. I would be happy because I could play outside more. The bad thing would be I could not watch YouTube.

Adalyn Woodfin, 2nd, Rock Springs Elementary, Mrs. Charlton

If the internet crashed, I would be a little upset because I could not contact my long-distance friends and that would be upsetting. I could not message any of my friends outside school. I also would not be able to do some stuff in school because some stuff is on computers. We would have to do everything on paper and that would be hard because who wants to work harder on schoolwork? We would not get as much done.

Makenlea Middleton, 6th, Pennington Middle, Ms. Lambert

If the internet crashed forever, I would miss flying planes in War Thunder. I would not miss all the drama on the internet.

Daniel Sweeney, 7th, Jonesville Middle, Mrs. Brooks

If the internet crashed forever the benefits would be going outside and getting stung by a bee. If the power goes out, I can't play Roblox. I can't get on my phone. I can't watch TV. How will I play my Nintendo Switch? What will I do? I don't like it when we lose internet service!

Kambri Branham, 2nd, Hilton Elementary, Mrs. Edwards

If the internet crashed, I would be mad. If the internet crashed, I would play basketball cause it's my favorite sport. I would be mad still on rainy days because I would be bored and I couldn't watch YouTube or play video games.

Alex Killion, 4th, Miller Perry Elementary, Ms. Jeffers

If the internet crashed, I would not like it because I could not watch YouTube. But I would like it because I could practice my layups for basketball. Also, I could play Nerf and play board games without the internet.

Canaan Farmer, 2nd, Rock Springs Elementary, Mrs. Charlton

The first drawback of the internet is cyber bullying because it causes people to end their lives. Some other reasons would be crimes, fraud, cyber scams and sadly these things are very common in this world today. Also, the internet can cause a negative impact on cognitive behavior. Not all things are bad about the internet. First you can stay in touch with friends on Facebook, you can get your Christmas shopping done quickly with online stores, and you can use AI to help you with homework. You can get information quickly.

Rilyn Welch, 6th, Elydale Middle, Mrs. Smith

If the internet crashed forever the benefits would be you could play outside more. You can go to your friend's house. You could make crafts, go to the movies, or go to Just Jump. The bad things are if you had an emergency at home and your parents couldn't get a hold of you. If you had to text your friends, you couldn't. You can't watch TikTok. You can't watch television. You can't play games on your phone.

Aryan Brown, 6th, Jonesville Middle, Mrs. Davis
